My Vision

I imagine a social context in which women's opinions can increasingly become a point of reference for decisions made in international political and economic settings. I would like our Association to become a connecting element between the world of work and the institutions, in order to be able to facilitate, on the one hand, increased access to the world of work and, on the other, to be a voice-bearer for women's needs in any professional context.

Another issue of great importance, on which we can and must diligently work, relates to wage equality; in a significant number of countries around the world, we see substantial inequality in terms of paid earnings, which penalizes the very dignity of hard-working women.

In regard to gender-based violence, I would like our Association to be a source of inspiration for so many women who experience violence, in whatever form it may manifest, physical, psychological, and economic, in order to be able to give them support to get out of that state of difficulty and pain. I would like us to be increasingly perceived as strong and courageous women who look to change with confidence.

BPW Offices held

I have been a member of the F.I.D.A.P.A. BPW Italy since 2014. I was a young woman when I decided to invest time and energy into matters connected to women's empowerment.

Between 2014 and 2015, I served as an executive secretary during which time my primary task was to give organisational support to the President of the club in various activities. After this time, I became a Young Representative of the Club. During these two years and together with other young women, I worked on initiatives connected to personal growth, violence against women, equal pay and other core issues. Following this my involvement continued in the capacity of District Young Representative.
